

Garage Cordia offers a fresh new start to the New Year: Toyota for 2006

Just towards the end of the year, Hans Schnog, Chairman of the Board of Garage Cordia offered some predictions for 2006. While a number of psychics publish their prophecies for the coming year hoping they will come true, the management of Garage Cordia could prove that what they foretold the press in their beautiful new showrooms in Camacuri would be realized, as the newly redesigned Toyotas for 2006 arrive in mid-March.

The management of Garage Cordia revealed not only completely redesigned models of their #1 seller, the Yaris, but also the Camry, the Rav 4, and a totally new model of SUV named the Fortuner.

Transformed from the inside out, these popular automobiles offer new style, increased power and performance, and roomier, more luxurious interiors.

The keywords to describe the new Yaris Hatchback are “smart, intelligent and vibrant” according to Toyota, “while concentrating at the advantages of being compact, the designers aimed for performance and quality to stay at top levels through 2010.

The stated developmental concept for the Yaris 2006 was “to create new standards for next generation compact cars.” Toyota designers “created a beautiful exterior and roomy interior with flexible rear seating, nimble handling and superior driving stability, and excellent safety performance.” Despite all these additional features, the Yaris shows a simplicity of design, and the new watchwords are “Simple is cool.”

The new Rav 4 for 2006 is fourteen inches longer than previous models, providing much more passenger room inside. The cockpit of the SUV had undergone a “major facelift” employing a user-friendly instrument panel featuring Optitron gauges a dual glove compartment and an audio mini-jackport.

“Performance is the key” with the Rav4, and it is one of the leaders in the four cylinder market boasting a 2.4 liter engine with 166 horsepower and an electronic on-demand 4 wheel drive.

The exterior of the new sporty Camry has remained the same, but the roomier interior has been completely redesigned to provide much more comfort for passengers in both the front and the rear seats. The biggest changes are under the hood, with a more powerful 2.4 liter engine offering increased horsepower and torque over previous models, and the option of a 3.5 liter V-6 engine.

The individual that loves off-roading will welcome the new Fortuner SUV, stylish but tough, it’s robust design and full-time four wheel drive system makes it easy to take that turn onto the path less traveled. This tough all-terrain vehicle boasts a luxurious but subtle interior with an elegant instrument panel and a sumptuous cabin with twenty-one compartments. Spacious seating for five also includes fold down rear seats for additional luggage space with room for big or long loads. An additional choice of a 3.0 liter Turbodiesel or 2.7 Gasoline engine offers buyers the option of customizing their vehicle for the performance needs of the owner, and a long list of safety features insure that this new model will be a tremendous success.

Garage Cordia has a few 2005 models still in stock at great buys for those that can’t wait until March, but they are taking orders now in expectation that the 2006 models will have little time on the showroom floor before being driven away. An engaging presentation of the four new models can be viewed in the comfort of their showroom theater while enjoying a cup of coffee. The sales force of Garage Cordia is waiting to help you pick out your new car for the new year!
